From

THE INSPECTOR-GENERAL OF PRISONS,
Bombay Presidency;

To

THE SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT,
Judicial Department,
Bombay.

Inspector-General of Prisons' Office,
Bombay, 14th April 1894.

SIR,

I have the honour to submit the annual report, together with the usual statistical tables, on the Jails in the Bombay Presidency for the year 1893.

JUDICIAL.

General summary.

2. The summary, which is to be found in the Appendix, shows that the total population in jails and lock-ups during the year under review was 77,443 as compared with 60,485 in the preceding year—an increase of 16,958, while the daily average population has risen from 8,022 in 1892 to 8,135 in 1893.

Statement No. 1.—Number and disposal of convicts.

3. This statement deals with convicted prisoners only, and a summary of it is given below :—

5. In the jails of Dhulia, Kárwár, Ratnágiri and Thána no special cause has been assigned for the increase; in the Common Jail of Bombay and in the House of Correction it is mainly attributable to a large number of convictions arising out of the disturbances of last August. The increase in the Surat Jail is due partly to a larger number of convictions for theft than in the previous year. For the decrease in the Yerrowda, Ahmedabad, Shikárpur and Rájkot Jails, no reason has been assigned, while for that in the jails of Bijápur, Dhárwár, Kaira and Hyderabad better local harvests than in the preceding year, and consequently lower prices for food-grains, appear to afford the most reliable explanation for the decrease in the prison population. The decrease in the Karáchi Jail is due to the fact that in 1893 there have been fewer convictions on all counts than was the case in 1892, though for this decrease in crime no special cause is assigned. The Nára Gang was for a portion of the year 1892 the District Jail of Thar and Párkar. Its connection as above with the district named ceased on the transference of the gang to Hyderabad in the middle of 1892, during the latter half of which year and throughout the whole of 1893 no direct admissions to the gang took place. The decrease in Aden Jail is mainly owing to a large number of minor offences having been disposed of by the local Courts by fine and deportation from the Settlement.

Female prisoners.

6. There has been a decrease of 115 in the number of females imprisoned during the year under report as compared with 1892:—

	1889.	1890.	1891.	1892.	1893.
Females	882	786	771	839	724
Decrease on previous year per cent. ...	...	10·9	1·9	...	13·7

7. The Yerrowda, Násik, Dhárwár, Ratnágiri, Surat and Shikárpur Jails show an increase, respectively, of 25, 6, 12, 2, 10 and 8 in the number of admissions of female prisoners, while the Common, Dhulia, Bijápur, Kárwár, Thána, Ahmedabad, Kaira, Rájkot, Karáchi, Hyderabad and Aden Jails show a decrease, under the same head, of 44, 16, 7, 4, 18, 22, 10, 11, 14, 8 and 9 respectively.

8. The statement below shows the number and disposal of convicted prisoners during the past two years:—

Total ...	25,347	1,172	26,519	25,754	1,059	26,813

9. The increase in the total number of transfers to undergo sentence during 1893 is chiefly due to the crowded state of the two Bombay jails in the latter half of the year owing to the local riots of last August, and also to a large number of prisoners having been transferred from the Sind jails to the Nára Gang, for employment on certain emergent protective works during the time, from April to June, that the gang was engaged in repairing the Khádi Bund in Karáchi District, and for employment on the Central Jail works at Hyderabad. The number released on appeal has been less by 89 in 1893 than in 1892. Under release on expiry of sentence the total shows for 1893 a decrease of 935 as compared with the number reported in 1892. The large increase of 374 against the head of "Release under Remission Rules" is in consequence of the introduction, during the past year, of the new mark rules whereby prisoners sentenced to a year's imprisonment and upwards are admitted to the benefits of the mark system, no prisoner with a sentence of less than two years having previously been in a position to earn marks. During the year under report, 3 prisoners have been released by order of Government on account of sickness, i.e. one each from the House of Correction, Dhárwár, and Thána Jails, and 7 on other grounds, of whom 2 were Europeans, and 5 natives of Cambay who were concerned in the disturbances of some few years back in that State. There were transported in 1893, 98 prisoners against 112 in the previous year, the entire decrease appearing amongst the female class. The one prisoner who was transferred to a lunatic asylum belonged to the Thána Jail. 21 prisoners escaped from Central, District and Subordinate Jails during the past year, and of these at the close of the year 12 were still at large against 14 similar cases in the preceding year. The number of executions has risen from 25 in 1892 to 34 in the year dealt with by this report. No female has during the past year suffered the extreme penalty of the law. There have been 186 deaths in the past against 264 in the preceding year, a decrease of 78. At the close of 1893 there remained in the jails 7,091 males and 219 females—151 of the number being Burmese (males).

10. The classification according to religion of convicts admitted into jail shows that out of 15,521 admissions, 344 or 2·2 per cent. were Christians, 5,554 or 35·8 per cent. were Mahomedans, and 9,539 or 61·5 per cent. were Hindus and Sikhs. Budhists and Jains have numbered 47 or 0·3 per cent., and all other classes 37 or 0·2 per cent. In this last figure are included 17 Parsis, 17 Jews, and 3 West Indians.

Statement No. II.—Religion, age, education of convicts, and previous occupation.

11. The number of juveniles admitted during the year has been 105. Of this number 86 were males and 19 females. The admissions are less by 6 than those recorded in the previous year. Of the 86 male juveniles admitted, 9 had been previously convicted; 54 were sentenced to terms of imprisonment for one month and under; 19 were under sentences from above one to six months; and 13 were under sentences of above six months.

Juveniles.

12. The particulars relating to the education of convicts while in jail, which were given in former years' reports in Statement No. VII, have on the present occasion, in view of the orders of the Government of India, been shown in column 5 of Statement No. II, and have reference only to juveniles sentenced to imprisonment for a year and upwards, the education formerly imparted to male adults having been discontinued in 1893. The education of juvenile convicts confined during 1893 has been limited to the Bijápur, Surát, Thána and Yerrowda Jails.

Education of convicts.

Government Resolution, Judicial Department, No. 2159, dated 8th April 1893 (para. 13).

13. The table which follows shows the occupation of convicts previous to imprisonment, and contains the figures of the free population according to the last census. The percentage of the various avocations in 1893 varies but slightly from that for the preceding year :—

14. The number of males received into Central, District and Subordinate Jails during the year 1881 was 21,307 or 0·25 per cent. of the free population. In 1893 the figures have been 26,748 or 0·27 per cent.

Statement No. III.—Nature and length of sentence.

15. The table which follows compares the sentences of the convicts admitted into the jails during 1892 and 1893 :—

	Not exceeding 1 month.	Above 1 and not exceeding 3 months.	Above 3 and not exceeding 6 months.	Above 6 months and not exceeding 1 year.	Above 1 year and not exceeding 2 years. 16. While there are marked decreases under the heads "Above one and not exceeding three months" and "Above six months but not exceeding one year," the ratios in a number of instances are slightly higher than in 1892. The number of sentences to transportation in 1893 has been 181 against 149 for 1892, while death sentences have risen by 3 over the number in 1892.

17. As regards the nature of the imprisonment awarded, the subjoined table exhibits a decrease under all heads. Under the head of "Rigorous imprisonment" there have been 627 fewer sentences in 1893 than in 1892 :—

	1892.	1893.
Sentence of simple imprisonment	921	920
Do. rigorous imprisonment	15,106	14,479
Do. do. with solitary confinement ...	83	49

Statement No. IV.—Re-convictions.

18. Of 2,097 previously convicted prisoners admitted into Central and District Jails during the past year, 1,258 have been identified before trial as against 1,662 out of 2,258 in 1892. In addition to the information to be gathered from the table which follows, it may be stated that the number of prisoners classified by Courts on conviction as "habituals" has fallen from 1,015 in 1892 to 946 in the past year, while the number of prisoners classified after conviction as "habituals" on a reference from the Jail authorities has been 154 in the later against 166 in the earlier period, making a total under both heads of 1,100 classifications, of the nature indicated, in 1893, against 1,181 such classifications in 1892 :—

Statement No. V.—Escapes and recaptures.

19. A reference to this statement will show that there have been 21 escapes in 1893 as against 28 in 1892, while the number of recaptures has been 14 in the later against 27 in the earlier period. Ten of the escapes have been from the Sind Jails and Gang. Three of the escapes have been from inside and 18 from outside the jails. The two escapes from inside the Ahmedabad Jail were effected from an unoccupied barrack over the Jail Hospital, the prisoners making their way through the roof of the building. The escape from within the Karáchi Jail was effected from the cooking yard. Of the 18 prisoners who escaped from outside the Jails, 3 were from Subordinate Jails. The Jail officials through whose negligence the escapes occurred have in the more serious cases been criminally prosecuted, and in other instances have been dealt with departmentally.

Statement No. VI—Offences and punishments.

20. This statement shows the offences committed by convicts in jail and the punishments inflicted on them. In the present report for the first time a new form of classification has, under the orders of the Government of India, been introduced into Statement VI (vide Government Resolution, Judicial Department, No. 2159 of 8th April 1893, paragraph 15). Taking the total for each year, a slight increase of 52 offences and punishments appears :—

	1892.	1893.
Offences dealt with by Criminal Courts ...	33	23
Offences dealt with by Superintendents—
Relating to work	2,158	2,475
Do. prohibited articles ...	786	684
Do. assaults, mutiny and escapes.	106	68
All other breaches of jail rules ...	1,340	1,225
Total ...	*4,423	4,475

* Includes 33 fetter punishments in the Yerrowda Central Jail not shown in the number, 4,390, in last year's report.

21. The number of criminal offences has been 23 against 33 in 1892. As in the preceding year, the greater proportion is made up of escapes and attempts at escape. There have been 2 cases of assault and 1 of murder, the latter occurring in the Dhulia Jail, where one prisoner killed another by striking the latter over the head with an iron bar. The largest number of offences relating to work naturally appears against Yerrowda Central Jail, where the number has risen from 1,225 in 1892 to 1,731 in 1893. The daily average number of prisoners in Yerrowda rose from 1,153 in the earlier to 1,451 in the later year.

22. The punishments inflicted in the two years have been as follows :—

		1892.	1893.
Punishments inflicted by Criminal Courts ...		33	23
By Superintendent.
Minor.	Warnings	320	445
	Penal diet	226	774
	Separate cellular and solitary confinement	30	92
	Hand-cuffing and link fetters ...	22	5
	Other punishments	2,371	2,213
	Total ...	2,969	3,529
Major.	Separate cellular and solitary confinement	1	10
	Penal diet with solitary confinement .	376	419
	Fetters	33	46
	Corporal punishments	101	123
	Other punishments	910	325
	Total ...	1,421	923
	Grand Total ...	4,423	4,475

23. The increase of 560 over the number for 1892 under minor offences punished by the Superintendent is to a great extent counterbalanced by the decrease of 498 in 1893 of the number of major offences punished by the Superintendent, Yerrowda Central Jail contributing the largest number under the former (1,987 as against 1,511 in 1892), and the Shikárpur District Jail the greatest decrease under the latter division of punishments, i.e. 290 less than in the preceding year. A falling off of 108 punishments for major offences appears in the case of the Thána Jail. The number of corporal punishments has risen from 99 in 1892 to 123 in 1893, of which the Yerrowda Central Jail has contributed 52 in the later against 14 in the earlier period. A table giving particulars as to the number of stripes inflicted is given below :—

24. I have, as Government are aware, been a strenuous supporter of the stocks as a form of punishment. In May last, however, when addressing a lengthy circular to the various Superintendents of Jails, as the result of my receiving the orders communicated to me in Government Resolution, Judicial Department, No. 2159 of 8th April 1893, I took upon myself, in view of the Government of India having disapproved of the above mode of punishment, to anticipate the disappearance from the Statute Book of Bombay Act II of 1874 with the provisions which it contains regarding the stocks, and to forbid any further use of the stocks in any of our Jails. While, therefore, in 1892 there were 2,369 punishments by stocks, in 1893 there have only been 1,217, the result naturally being an increase in the figures relating to corporal punishment, to punishment by penal diet, and to punishment by solitary confinement, in the later as contrasted with the earlier year.

Imposition of fetters.

25. Subjoined is the usual statement showing the number of cases in which fetters have been imposed during the year. The number in the preceding year was 7,202. The very large decrease is due to the introduction of the new and modified fetter rules, in accordance with the orders contained in paragraph 26 of the Government of India's Resolution, Home Department, No. 10—Jails, dated 9th November 1892 :—

Appendix C.—Mark system.

26. The number of prisoners on the mark rolls released during the year has been 1,139, an increase of 374 over the number in 1892. This increase is accounted for by the extension, during the past year, of the benefits of the mark system to labour prisoners sentenced to one year and upwards. Ten prisoners have during the year failed, owing to misconduct, to gain any remission :—

Statement No. VII (Judicial).—Convict Officers.

27. With a daily average population of 6,751 males and 218 females, 557 males and 7 females have been employed as convict officers. The number of male convict officers is more than in the previous year, in which the number stood at 527, while that of females is less by 2 than in the earlier year. The ratio per cent. of male and female convict officers to daily average strength has been practically the same in 1893 as in 1892. The number of punishments has been less by 15 than in the preceding year, having fallen from 234 to 219. The system of guarding and patrolling the sleeping barracks and wards during the night by convicts termed "night watchmen," to which reference was made in paragraph 26 of last year's report, has been further extended during the past year and with satisfactory results.

Statement No. VIII.—Diet.

28. During the past year an important change has been made in the diet scales, in accordance with the views of the Government of India, the diet of under-trial prisoners having, subject to certain modifications, been placed on the same footing as that of labour prisoners on the lower scale, and the diet scale for prisoners sentenced to three months' imprisonment and less having been assimilated to that for prisoners sentenced to longer terms. This would appear the proper place to observe that, in connection with the issue of the orders above referred to, I have during the past year been much struck with the inelasticity of our present diet scales, a state of things which will be dealt with in the new Jail Manual, wherein I propose—subject, of course, to the approval of Government—when framing the revised diet scales to take into account certain local considerations to meet which the present scales do not provide.

Statement No. XVIII.—Under-trial prisoners, District Jails.

29. The table which follows is an abstract of Statement No. XVIII, and shows the number and disposal of under-trial prisoners during the years 1892 and 1893 :—

	1892.			1893.

30. The number of under-trial prisoners admitted during the year shows an increase of 2,536 when compared with the admissions for 1892. The August disturbances in Bombay have, of course, materially contributed to this increase. The daily average number in confinement has been 268 against 173 in the previous year. The number released has been 2,811 or 49·5 per cent. of the total number admitted, and the number convicted and sentenced has been 1,882 or 33·2 per cent. In 1892 the number released was 50·7 per cent. and the number convicted and sentenced 47·5 per cent. Five under-trial prisoners died in the District Jails during the year. Of these 2 died in the Common Jail and 1 in each of the Shikárpur, Hyderabad and Aden Jails. The number remaining at the close of the year was 170.

Subordinate Jails and Lock-ups.

31. The following table shows the number of under-trial prisoners admitted into Subordinate Jails and Lock-ups during the year and the number remaining at the close of the year :—

	Subordinate Jails.			Lock-ups.			Total.

32. The number of admissions into Subordinate Jails and Lock-ups has been 14,131 more than those shown in the report for 1892. In explanation of this, at first sight startling, increase it is necessary to observe that in previous years' reports the lock-up prisoners in Bombay City, in Aden, and at Rájkot have never been shown in Statement XIX now renumbered as XVIII. The lock-up admissions for the above three stations have during the past year amounted in the aggregate to 15,641. If, therefore, the Bombay, Aden and Rájkot figures be left out of account, it will be found that the total number of admissions has been less by 1,510 in 1893 than in 1892. The explanation of the Bombay, Aden and Rájkot lock-up returns being for the first time included in the present report will be found in the correspondence terminating with Judicial Department memorandum No. 6798, dated 30th of last October. During the year under report the total number of releases has been 9,196, of convictions 26,971, of escapes 12, (2 from Subordinate Jails and 10 from Lock-ups), and of deaths 16. The daily average number of prisoners confined has been 669 or 48 more than shown in the report for 1892. Leaving the Bombay, Aden and Rájkot figures out of account, the daily average for 1893 has been 612 against 621 in 1892. Of the 3 deaths in the Subordinate Jails there have occurred one in each of the 3 districts of Poona, Belgaum and Hyderabad. Of the 13 deaths in the lock-ups there have taken place in the districts of Poona and Shikárpur each 2; Upper Sind Frontier, Ahmedabad, Broach, Násik, Sátára and Ahmednagar each 1; and in Kaira 3.

Convicts—Subordinate Jails.

33. The subjoined table shows the number remaining on the last day of the year, the number admitted, and the disposal of convicted prisoners in the Subordinate Jails during the years 1892 and 1893 :—

34. The figures in the above statement show that there has been a decrease in the number of both male and female convicts imprisoned during the year as compared with the year 1892. The total daily average strength has been 229, or 40 over the previous year. The 4 deaths occurred in the Thar and Párkar (2), Ahmednagar (1), and Sholápur (1) districts. The number of convicts remaining on the last day of the year was 205 males and 12 females.

Appendix E.—Number and disposal of civil prisoners.

35. The following table gives particulars regarding civil prisoners for the past two years :—

	1892.			1893.

36. There has been an increase of 44 in the number of admissions during the year under report as contrasted with the year 1892. The increase is principally in the jails of Hyderabad, Aden and Thána. The 2 deaths occurred in the Ahmedabad and Surat Jails. The daily average strength has been 116, or 2 higher than in 1892, and this increase has caused a fall in the average cost from Rs. 69-9-6 in 1892 to Rs. 68-15-0 in the year under review.

FINANCIAL.

Statements Nos. X and XI —Expenditure.

37. The gross expenditure for Central and District Jails, Subordinate Jails, and Lock-ups during the past 2 years is shown in the table below:—

38. It will be observed that whereas there is an increase of Rs. 1,912 in the total expenditure of the past year over that for 1892, the average cost per prisoner has fallen from Rs. 72-14-2 in 1892 to Rs. 72-1-8 in 1893, a result of the daily average number of prisoners confined having been greater in 1893 than in the previous year.

39. The charges for inspection and general superintendence have been less by Rs. 1,178 than in 1892, in which latter year the charges arising out of my deputation to the Jail Conference at Calcutta in January 1892 were included.

Rations.

40. Notwithstanding the changes in the diet scales, in the direction of increased rations to which reference has been made in paragraph 28, the cost per prisoner, under the head of rations, has fallen Rs. 1-4-3. In some Jails, e.g., those in the City of Bombay and in Gujarát, the contract rates for 1893 have been appreciably less favourable than those for the preceding year. On the other hand, the favourable contract rates for 1893, as compared with those for the preceding year, obtaining elsewhere, and especially in the case of the Yerrowda, Bijápur and Hyderabad Jails, and in that of the Deccan and Nára Gangs, and the reduction in the rationing charges at Dhárwár, have contributed to produce as an all-round result the reduction per head of ration charges shown at the commencement of the present paragraph. Dhárwár Jail has during the past year been rationed partly under the contract system and partly departmentally through the means of the Jail grain pit system. In paragraph 40 of my report for 1892 I gave reasons for deferring until the present occasion my report on the success or otherwise of the Dhárwár Jail grain pit experiment. I will not even yet commit myself to an irrevocable opinion regarding the absolute certainty of such a system proving everywhere and at all times a measure of economy. This, however, I will say; that as far as we have gone at Dhárwár we have no reason whatever to regret, in a fiscal sense, the experiment that has been made, and in support of this view I appeal to the figures in Statement No. X relating to the ration charges in the Dhárwár Jail and in the Deccan Gang during the two past years, the Deccan Gang being encamped about 9 or 10 miles from Dhárwár. The ration charge per prisoner in the gang has fallen by Re. 1-12-0 in the later as compared with the earlier year, while in the Jail of Dhárwár the reduction has amounted to Rs. 4-8-9. The table below shows the average rate at which the chief food-grains were purchaseable during the years 1892 and 1893, the figures for 1893 comparing favourably, and in some cases very favourably, with those for the preceding year :—

	Average Rate per Rupee.
	1892.		1893.
	Lbs.	ozs.	Lbs.	ozs.
Rice	19	12	19	13
Wheat	20	10	23	10
Bájri	28	9	32	4
Jowári	32	8	34	2
Dál	21	9	32	8

41. The average cost of rations per head of convicts in the Central and District Jails during the year has been Rs. 29-5-10. This has been exceeded by the Bijápur (Rs. 31-5-11) and Aden (Rs. 40-6-11) Jails, and Nára (Rs. 47-7-6) and Deccan (Rs. 42-13-2) Gangs. In the Bombay City Jails the cost of rations per convict in the year 1893 has been Rs. 27-9-7 against Rs. 26-7-4 in 1892; in the Deccan Rs. 28-5-7 against Rs. 28-13-4 in 1892; in the Southern Marátha Country Rs. 33-5-6 against Rs. 38-3-10; in the Konkan Rs. 25-10-10 against Rs. 25-6-8; in Gujarát Rs. 26-15-8 against Rs. 25-2-6; in Sind Rs. 31-9-1 against Rs. 32-7-1; and in Aden Rs. 40-6-11 against Rs. 40-10-2. The estimated value of vegetables supplied by the Jail gardens for provisioning the prisoners has been Rs. 16,427-2-10, which is Rs. 240-7-9 in excess of the estimated value under the same head for 1892. An excellent temporary garden, established in the neighbourhood of the camp of the Dedargáon Gang near Dhulia, has played no mean part in securing the above result.

Establishment and Police Guard.

42. The slight increase of nine annas and nine pies in the cost per head of Establishment is due to a variety of causes, chief amongst which may be named the substitution of a number of warders for policemen in the case of the Nára Gang; and the filling up, in 1893, of a number of posts—in the warder establishment of two Jails—which had remained vacant throughout 1892. There has been a decrease of annas eight and pies six per head for Police guards during the year under report, due partly to the arrangements in connection with the Nára Gang above referred to, and partly also to the daily average population of our Jails having been greater in the year under report than in that which preceded it.

Hospital charges.

43. Both the total cost and the cost per prisoner under the head "Hospital charges" have increased, the former by Rs. 577-0-0 and the latter by nine pies, as contrasted with the figures for 1892. Both the number of the sick and the number of serious cases of illness in 1893 have been in excess of the number for 1892.

Clothing.

44. The total cost of clothing has increased from Rs. 20,445 in 1892 to Rs. 24,989 in the past year, while the average cost per prisoner in 1893 has been Rs. 3-1-2 as against Rs. 2-8-9 in the preceding year. The increase is chiefly due to large issues of new clothing to the Yerrowda Central Jail and Nára Gang, in the latter case largely to replace clothing damaged and spoilt during the time the Gang was employed on the Khadi Bund, and to large issues of woollen blankets to the Shikárpur Jail during the year under report. The increased cost in the case of the Common Jail, and in a lesser degree in that of the House of Correction, is due to extra clothing, in the matter of blankets, having had to be provided as the result of the disturbances of last August in Bombay.

Contingencies.

45. The total expenditure under the head of "Contingencies" has amounted to Rs. 55,311 during the year as compared with Rs. 54,328 during the year 1892. The average expenditure per prisoner in the Central and District Jails has been 2 annas and 10 pies more than in the previous year, while the cost per prisoner under the same head in the Subordinate Jails and Lock-ups is respectively less by Rs. 1-11-11 and Rs. 1-14-11 than was the case in 1892. The most marked increase in the case of the Yerrowda Jail, of the Nára Gang, and of the Dhulia and Common Jails, is for prisoners' transfer charges, and for purchase of dead-stock articles. Charges in connection with the erection of temporary accommodation for the Nára Gang at Baragozo and with the arrangements for the reception, in the local Jails, of prisoners charged with rioting in Bombay in August last, have also contributed to swell our expenditure on account of contingent charges. The subjoined table compares the expenditure in Central and District Jails during 1893 under the head of "Contingencies" with that of the previous year:—

	1892.	1893.	Increase.	Decrease.

Grand Total ...	41,014	42,468	4,405 1,454	2,951

46. The large decrease of Rs. 1,048 under the head of "Water rates" is apparently mainly due to repairs which have been carried out in the main cistern of the Jail of Yerrowda. The increase of Rs. 2,090 for "Clothing to Establishment" is owing to clothing issues having been due to a greater number of Jails in the past than in the preceding year. Of the "Controllable Charges," the increase of Rs. 753-0-0 on account of moving prisoners explains itself, a larger number of prisoners having been transferred in 1893 than in 1892. The increase under "Dead stock" is mainly due to the manufacture and issue, during the past year, of a large number of the new pattern zinc pots and plates. The increased expenditure on account of "Oil for lighting" is due partly to a rise in the price of the article and partly to improved lighting arrangements having been effected in some of the jails during the past year. The decrease, in 1893, of Rs. 365 under the head of "Transportation charges" and of Rs. 518 on account of "Subsistence money to released prisoners" represents economies which, as in the case of the increased outlay on account of transfer charges, explain themselves. Miscellaneous petty contingent expenditure always plays a large part in the outgoings of our extramural Gangs. The reduction under this head is partly due to the daily average strength of the Deccan Gang having been much less in 1893 than in 1892. The expenditure under this head in the Jail of Thána also exhibits a substantial reduction, which, however, is more apparent than real, as in last year's report an expenditure of about Rs. 250-0-0 on dead stock was through error classified as miscellaneous contingent expenditure.

Statement No. XI.—Employment of convicts.

47. The following table compares the employment of convicts for the last two years :—

		Average number under sentence to labour.	Sick and convalescent.	On unremunerative labour.	Prison officers.	Prison servants.	Gardening.	Grinding grain and preparing articles for Jail use.	On additions, alterations and repairs to Jail buildings.	Manufactures.	Extramural labour.

1893...	Number ...	6,889	544	295	326	654	404	945	380	2,165	1,176
	Percentage...	100	7·9	4·3	4·7	9·5	5·9	13·7	5·5	31·4	17·1

48. It will be seen from the above table that the total daily average number of prisoners sentenced to labour has decreased by 64, from 6,953 in 1892 to 6,889 in 1893. The daily average number of sick and convalescent prisoners has risen from 509 in 1892 to 544 during the year under report, equivalent to an increase of 0·6 per cent. The numbers and percentages on "Unremunerative labour" and "Gardening" exhibit a decrease of 94 or 1·2 per cent. "Prison servants" as well as those employed on "Grinding grain and preparing articles for Jail use" show an increase of 159 over the number reported for 1892. The decrease of 20 or 0·3 in 1893 in the number employed on "Additions, &c., to Jail buildings" is trifling, and calls for no explanation. The number shown as employed on manufactures is the same for each year, though the percentage in the later period is, owing to the decrease in the average number of those sentenced to labour, very slightly higher. There has been a drop of 153 in the average number of those employed extramurally, which is attributable to the large reduction in the strength of the Deccan Gang in 1893 as compared with the previous year. On an average some 203 prisoners of the Hyderabad Jail and some 223 of Nára Gang have been daily employed, throughout the past year in the case of the Hyderabad Jail, and for some 10½ months of that year in the case of the Nára Gang, on the construction of the Hyderabad Central Jail. The daily average working strength of the Nára Gang during the 7 weeks or thereabouts that it was encamped at Baragozo, engaged in repairing the Khádi Bund, was about 300.

Statement No. XII.—Appendix G.—Earnings.

49. This statement shows the net cash earnings of convicts sentenced to labour. These earnings have amounted during 1893 to Rs. 1,34,397-11-0 against Rs. 1,14,314-3-0 in 1892, or an increase of Rs. 20,083-8-0. The average earnings of each prisoner employed on manufactures have been Rs. 37-14-0 against Rs. 30-12-0 in 1892, and the average earnings of each prisoner sentenced to labour Rs. 18-15-0 against Rs. 16-1-0 in 1892. The table below gives the net profits, for the past four years, of the jail factories :—

	1890.	1891.	1892.	1893.
	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.
Net profits ...	42,916 0 0	52,522 0 0	49,370 0 0	47,379 0 0
Profits per prisoner ...	21 5 9	25 5 2	22 12 10	21 14 2

50. Manufactures.—Fourteen of the jails exhibit a decrease in profits under this head as compared with 1892, while in 5 the contrary is the case, the net result all round being, as shown above, a decline of Rs. 1,991 on the profits for 1893.

51. There has been an increase of 29,858-14-5 in the earnings under the head of Extramural labour, notwithstanding that the average number of prisoners employed on this kind of work has been 1,176 during the year under report against 1,329 in 1892. This increase is attributable to adjustments, in 1893, of heavy outstandings due at the close of the preceding year in the case of the Hyderabad Jail and Nára Gang. The extramural operations of the Thána Jail during 1893 have resulted in a deficit of Rs. 183-5-4, whereas in the preceding year a net profit of Rs. 1,232-9-7 was realized under the head under reference. In this Jail we unfortunately during the past year have had to write off a sum of Rs. 318 due to the Jail on account of extramural labour supplied to one of the sub-contractors of the Tánsa Main, who became insolvent. There has been, in 1893, hardly any extramural work for prisoners offering at Thána compared with what was the case in the preceding year. In the case of the Nára Gang the realizations on account of extramural labour, which stood at Rs. 8,841-14-7 in 1892, have, for reasons which are given above, risen to Rs. 19,835-12-10 in the past year. This Gang, it will be within the recollection of Government, was in April last moved down to Baragozo, in the Karáchi District, about 60 miles from Hyderabad, for the purpose of repairing the Khádi Bund, remaining there until the 11th of June, when, owing to an abnormally high flood in the Indus, the Bund was breached, the Gang being driven out of its camp and having to return to Hyderabad to resume its labours on the construction of the Central Jail. I had the honour of submitting a special report to Government—this office No. 4624 of 9th October last—on the operations, &c., of the Nára Gang at Baragozo, and no further reference to the subject on the present occasion appears to be called for. The realizations on account of extramural labour in the case of the Hyderabad Jail for 1893, containing, as they do, adjustments of heavy outstandings due at the end of 1892, stand at Rs. 34,352-12-11 against Rs. 6,755-15-1 for the year preceding. The realizations on account of extramural labour in the case of the Deccan Gang have fallen from Rs. 32,846-13-2 in 1892 to Rs. 17,910-5-2 in the past year. The strength of the Gang has during the past year been gradually reduced, and at the present time stands at about 300, and owing to the questions which still remain to be settled in connection with the launching of the Dhárwár water-works scheme, a project on which it is proposed to employ the prisoners of the Deccan Gang, it now remains in its camp at Ankal, in the neighbourhood of the Bund on the construction of which it had been employed for some 2½ years up to last November. For 1892 the operations of the Dedargaon Gang, a small off-shoot Gang belonging to the Jail of Dhulia, resulted, owing to the expenditure incurred for building shelters for the prisoners, in a deficit slightly in excess of Rs. 600. In paragraph 50 of my last annual report I led Government to understand that the operations of this small Gang for 1893 would, in a financial sense, show up much better than in 1892. The net profits due to the labours of the Dedargaon Gang during 1893 have amounted to Rs. 5,409-7-7.

Appendix H.

52. The cash realizations under the different heads of labour on which the prisoners have been employed, are given in the subjoined table :—

	1892.	1893.
	Rs.	Rs.
Factory	51,650	51,494
Garden...	4,046	3,944
Extramural labour	53,341	74,463
Building and repairing jails ...	3,665	2,666
Subordinate Jails	1,612	1,831
Total ...	1,14,314	1,34,398

53. As regards the above, it is necessary to explain that the labour of a small party of prisoners of the Dhuliákot Jail employed on the construction of the Ahmedabad Central Jail has been shown under the fourth heading, while the labour of the prisoners of the Nára Gang and Hyderabad Jail employed in constructing the Hyderabad Central Jail has been classified under the third heading. I must ask to be forgiven for the above incongruity, which did not attract my attention until a number of the calculations appearing in some earlier paragraphs of this report had been worked out. It does not appear necessary to delay the submission of this report in order to admit of some detailed information, showing exactly what was the daily average strength of the working parties on the new Central Jail works and on the Khádi Bund, being called for from the Nára Gang, to allow of some of the figures, to which reference has been made above, being worked out afresh. And in connection with the above remarks it may be added that in Statement No. XI the whole of the prison labour employed in constructing the Hyderabad Central Jail has been, in the case of the Nára Gang and Hyderabad Jail, shown in sub-columns (a) and (b) of column L of main column 7 respectively, instead of, as I am disposed to think should have been the case in both instances, in column J of main column 7. I say I am disposed to think, because as regards the Nára Gang, which is a Public Works Jail in the sense in which I understand that expression, it is a debateable point as regards Statement No. XI whether it should figure, in regard to its labours on the Central Jail, in sub-column (a) of column L or in column J. Turning again, after the above somewhat laboured explanation, to the figures in the table at the head of this paragraph, I would explain that the substantial relative reduction in earnings under the fourth head is mainly due to the daily average strength of the small labour Gang from the Dhuliákot Jail employed on the construction of the Ahmedabad Central Jail having been somewhat less in 1893 than in the year preceding. Dealing with the second heading appearing in the above table, namely "Garden," and looking not to the past but to the future, the present would appear to be the proper place in this report to advert to a scheme which I have taken in hand for developing to the utmost extent possible the cultivation of the cocoanut palm on the garden ground of our two coast Jails of Kárwár and Ratnágiri, and of our Jail at Thána. Ratnágiri and Thána are neither of them so favourably situated for the prosecution of the above experiment as is Kárwár, at which station the cocoanut palm seems to exhibit unusually rapid powers of growth, and abnormal powers of fecundity. In May 1892, when I visited the Kárwár Jail and initiated the measures above referred to, I found 390 cocoanut palms, of which 150 had reached the bearing stage, growing on the Jail land. In November 1893, when next visiting the Jail, I found 780—exactly double the number in May 1892—cocoanut palms growing on the Jail ground, 222 of which had reached the bearing stage. So far we have been very successful in our operations, only three nuts, of those planted in the interval of eighteen months which elapsed between my two visits to Kárwár, having failed to germinate. I estimate that, approximately, in time we should be able to increase the number of the cocoanut palms on the Jail land at Kárwár to some 1,600 bearing trees, which should as regards coir—of which the consumption in several of our Jails is considerable—and oil add largely to the receipts of the Kárwár Jail.

54. This statement shows the total cost of guarding and maintenance for Central and District Jails and Lock-ups, and the total net cost to Government. The total expenditure, excluding "Inspection charges" for 1893, has been Rs. 5,60,401 against Rs. 5,57,311 in 1892, an increase of Rs. 3,090. The actual cash realizations have been Rs. 1,34,398 in 1893 against Rs. 1,14,314 in 1892, an increase of Rs. 20,084, thus making the total net cost to Government of this Department Rs. 4,26,003 in the past year against Rs. 4,42,997 in 1892, a decline of Rs. 16,994. The net cost per prisoner has fallen from Rs. 55-3-0 to Rs. 52-6-0, a decrease of Rs. 2-13-0 per head. The financial results of the past year in this Department are, I think I may fairly submit, on the whole satisfactory.

Statement No. XIII.—Net cost.

VITAL.

55. This statement shows the sickness and mortality among prisoners of all classes during the year. With a daily average strength of 8,135 confined in jails and lock-ups, there have been 6,569 admissions into hospital, the daily average number of sick has been 233·69, and the total number of deaths 207 or 25·4 per mille of average strength. The figures for 1892 were as follows :—Daily average strength 8,022; admissions into hospital 6,311; daily average number of sick 234·93; total number of deaths 293 or 36·5 per mille. The above figures, dealing as they do with the entire Department, may certainly, I think, be regarded as satisfactory. With a somewhat higher daily average strength, with a fair increase in the total number of admissions into hospital, and with a daily average number of sick slightly lower than in the preceding year, the mortality in 1893 has been less by 86 deaths than was the case in 1892, the ratio of deaths having fallen 11·1 per mille. The total number of deaths in 1893 has been less than that of any year since 1888, the ratio of deaths per mille having also been the lowest recorded in any one of the five years which have elapsed since that year.

Statement No. XIV.—Sickness and mortality.

56. The table below gives the particulars of the capacity of the several jails :—

57. Out of the 19 jails given in the above list, 14 show up as having been habitually overcrowded during the past year, the figures in the final column against the Common Jail, the House of Correction, and the Jail of Thána being somewhat startling. The disturbances in Bombay in August last are responsible for this state of affairs. The above occurrences, combined with the diminution in the strength of the Deccan Gang, owing to the completion of its labours on the Ankal dam, have been the cause of the less aggravated—as compared with that of the riot period—overcrowding of the two Bombay Jails and the Jail of Thána being somewhat prolonged. The Bombay disturbances are also indirectly responsible for the overcrowding of the Násik Jail, the surplus population of which is ordinarily transferred to Thána, while their effect has also, owing to the filling up of the Yerrowda and Thána Jails, been felt in the Jails of Gujarát, from which latter Jails transfers are at times made to Yerrowda and Thána to relieve overcrowding. The overcrowding in the Jails of Bijápur and Dhárwár is due to the reduction in the strength of the Deccan Gang. Regarding the overcrowding at Dhulia it is more apparent than real, for the Dedargaon Gang, an off-shoot of the Dhulia Jail, which has been taken into account in the figures given above for the Dhulia Jail, has been throughout the year accommodated in temporary barracks in the immediate neighbourhood of the work on which it is engaged, and the daily average strength of the Dedargaon Gang has been 102 for the past year, while at times its strength has consisted of as many as 200 and more prisoners. The Shikárpur overcrowding mostly occurred in the hot weather, when, as pointed out in previous years' reports, the prisoners in that Jail pass the night in the yards of the Jail and not in its barracks.

58. The abstract below deals with the sickness and mortality amongst convicts and under-trial prisoners in the Central and District Jails during the past two years :—

	1892.			1893.
	Males.	Females.	Total.	Males.	Females.	Total.
Total population	25,252	1,091	26,343	28,214	982	29,196

Do. do. to admission into hospital	46·9	7·7	46·0	31·4	27·8	31·3

59. There is an increase of only 57 in the total number "admitted into hospital" in 1893 as compared with 1892. Yerrowda, Bijápur and Thána Jails exhibit an increase, under this head, of 583, 282 and 322 admissions respectively. In the Kaira Jail there has been a decrease of 352, in the Shikárpur Jail one of 220, and in the Deccan Gang one of 214 in the number of admissions as compared with the figures for the preceding year.

60. The number of deaths in Central and District Jails during 1893 has been 187 against 272 in the preceding year, a decline in number of 85 deaths, the ratio per mille of deaths to daily average strength having dropped from 37·7 in the earlier to 25·8 in the later period. As regards ratio of deaths to total population and to admissions into hospital, the figures for 1893 exhibit a drop of 3·9 and 14·7 respectively. The Jails in which the mortality has exceeded 33·3 per mille of the average strength are Kaira, Surat and Karáchi.

Kaira.—The number of deaths in the Jail during the year has been 24 against 15 in 1892, and of the former there have been due—9 to cholera, 8 to dysentery and diarrhœa, 1 to anæmia, and 6 to respiratory diseases. The death-rate per mille in this Jail in 1893 has reached the figure of 123·1 against 70·4 in 1892 and is the one abnormally dark blot in, as regards the year's death roll taken all round, a satisfactory record. The number of admissions into hospital has been 106 against 458 in the preceding year, the average daily strength during the year under report having been 195 against 213 in 1892. The past year has been an unusually unhealthy one—especially in the matter of bowel complaints and diseases of the respiratory organs—amongst the free population of the Kaira District, and what in the matter of mortality has occurred within the Jail walls may be accepted as a microcosm of what has been going on outside in the surrounding district. With the opening of the Ahmedabad Central Jail the Jail of Kaira will disappear altogether. The latter Jail has often before now earned an evil reputation on account of it's heavy death-rate, and I shall, therefore, hail it's disappearance from the scene with unmixed satisfaction.

Surat.—The death-rate has risen from 38·7 in 1892 to 65·2 in the past year—the number of deaths having been 12 in the later as against 7 in the earlier year. Of these, 5 have been due to cholera, 2 to anæmia, 1 to diarrhœa and 4 to diseases of the respiratory organs. Ten of the 12 were on admission into the Jail in an indifferent state of health.

Karáchi.—The number of deaths in the Jail of Karáchi during the past year has been 11 against 16 in the year preceding, the ratio per mille of deaths to daily average strength having dropped from 52·3 in 1892 to 36·9 in the past year. The number of admissions into hospital during the year under report has been 113 or 38 below the figures for 1892. The 11 deaths have been due—1 to angina pectoris, 1 to typhlitis, 1 to peritonitis, 1 to heat apoplexy and 7 to respiratory diseases.

61. The following statement deals with the sickness and mortality in the Subordinate Jails and Lock-ups during the past two years.:—

62. The number of admissions into hospital in the Subordinate Jails and lock-ups together has reached 602, and the number of deaths has amounted to 20. The figures under these heads for 1892 were 401 and 21 respectively, thus resulting in 1893 in an increase of 201 in the case of admissions and a decrease of 1 in that of deaths.

63. The annexed table is an abstract of Statement XV, and gives the number of admissions into hospital and of deaths from the chief diseases among convicts confined in the Central and District Jails during the years 1892 and 1893:—

Statement No. XV.

	1892.		1893.
	Admissions.	Deaths.	Admissions.	Deaths.
Small-pox	...	...	4	...
Intermittent fever	2,301	3	2,529	3

Dysentery and diarrhœa	836	61	760	35
Jaundice	73	1	44	1
Ulcers and boils	89	...	115	...

64. In the matter of admissions into hospital there has been during the past year as compared with 1892 a falling off under the heads of remittent and continued fever, other fevers, scrofula and phthisis pulmonalis, anæmia and general debility, dysentery and diarrhœa, and jaundice, the converse being the case as regards small-pox, intermittent fever, cholera, respiratory diseases, and ulcers and boils. Considerably more than half the total number of admissions during the past year has, as is ordinarily the case, been due to intermittent fever. Diseases of the respiratory organs have been responsible for more than a third, dysentery and diarrhœa for about a fourth, and cholera for about one-seventh of the total number of deaths shown in the final column of the above table. Cholera during the past year has made its appearance in five Jails, namely those of Kaira, Surat, Yerrowda, Dhulia and Thána. That the disease when it appeared was of a malignant type may be gathered from the fact that the proportions of deaths to admissions was something like 77 per cent.

Statement No. XVI.—Mortality according to age.

65. This statement deals with the mortality amongst convicts according to age. The large decline in the mortality has in the past year produced a reduction in the ratio per mille as regards all the classes figuring in the statement.

Statement No. XVII.—Mortality according to length of residence in Jail.

66. The following is a summary of Statement XVII and shows the mortality according to the length of time passed in Jail :—

	1892.			1893.
	Average Number.	Deaths.	Ratio of deaths per mille of average strength.	Average Number.	Deaths.	Ratio of deaths per mille of average strength.

Above 7 years	219	5	22·8	197	9	45·7
Total ...	7,037	262	37·2	6,962	182	26·1

67. There has in the matter of ratio been a decrease in all the six classes given in the above table, save the last, in which the ratio has almost exactly doubled. This class too is the only one in which an absolute as well as a relative increase in the mortality appears.

68. This statement gives particulars of the condition of the prisoners who have been discharged from Jail during the last two years. The results for 1893 do not compare unfavourably with those for the preceding year :—

Do. who remained stationary ...	2,776	17·6	3,233	20·1

69. The statement below relates to the visits of inspection on the part of official visitors of Jails, and shows a considerable advance on the figures for 1892, the number of quarterly meetings, the aggregate number of official visitors attending those quarterly meetings, and the number of other occasions on which a Jail was visited by an official visitor during 1893 having been 86, 425 and 1,527, respectively, against 82,369 and 1,391 during 1892 :—

GENERAL REMARKS.

Wadhwán Jail.

70. By the orders contained in Government Resolution, Judicial Department, No. 4268, dated 11th July last, the control of the Wadhwán Civil Station Jail was made over to the Inspector-General of Prisons. In the present report no statistics relating to that Jail will be found in any of the Appendix statements. In explanation of this I would say that I was unable to visit the Wadhwán Jail until after the close of the past calendar year; that in introducing into that Jail such changes as its annexation to the Bombay Jail Department has rendered necessary I think it most desirable, in the matter of returns, reports, and statements, to proceed slowly with those changes so as to avoid any risk of producing confusion in a Jail with a limited establishment; and that under these circumstances, more especially in view of the fact that the Wadhwán Jail has belonged to this Department for less than 6 months of the past year, I have thought that it would be permissible to exclude it, in a statistical sense, from the present report.

71. In last year's report I spoke hopefully of the Central Jail at Ahmedabad being ready for occupation at the close of the monsoon of 1893. An unanticipated delay arose, however, in connection with the carrying out of the arrangements for furnishing the Jail with its own independent source of water-supply, and the Jail has not as yet been handed over to this Department, though I now gather that it will be made over to us within the course of a few weeks from the present time. The Hyderabad Central Jail will, I understand, be ready for occupation in about 6 months from the present time, possibly a a little earlier. The new Rájkot Jail will, I anticipate, be handed over to us in the course of the next two or three months. A year which is marked by the completion of two new Central and one new District Jail may, I take it, be termed a red-letter year as regards Jail construction in the history of that Department to which those three Jails belong. During the past year various improvements have been carried out in a number of our Jails, having been financed in some cases by Government from the general funds of the Public Works Department, and in others from the departmental discretionary grant for minor works. These measures of improvement have been some 30 in number, principal among which may be named the erection of the nightsoil ejector at the Yerrowda Jail, the improvement of the ventilation in the sleeping barracks of the Dhárwár Jail, and the alterations in the Superintendent's bungalow in the case of the Jail at Karáchi. Three important measures of improvement in the Jail of Bijápur, consisting of the construction of a main enclosure wall, of the enlargement of the windows in the wards, and of the construction of a bathing platform of large size, were, in addition to the above works, taken in hand during the year with which this report deals, and are rapidly approaching completion. Plans and estimates for the construction of a new Subordinate Jail at Broach have been prepared during the past year and have received the provisional sanction of Government. Plans and estimates for the enlargement of the old Subordinate Jail at Sukkur, with a view to admit of the transfer to the above station, from Shikárpur, of the District Jail, are now in course of preparation.

The Bombay Riots of August 1893.

73. Incidentally here and there in the present report allusion has been made to the disturbances of last August in Bombay; but it may not be out of place, before bringing the report to a conclusion, to devote a few special remarks to those disturbances and to their effect as felt in this Department in the case of the two Bombay City Jails and the Jail of Thána. The riots in Bombay commenced on Friday the 11th August in the forenoon. By Saturday morning the lock-ups at the various police stations scattered throughout the city had become overcrowded to a most extraordinary extent, and though lock-up prisoners are not, as a rule, admitted into the House of Correction and Common Jail, it became absolutely necessary to accommodate in those Jails as many prisoners of that class as possible, and accordingly on Saturday afternoon the inflow of these prisoners into the two Jails above named commenced. The measured capacity of the House of Correction and the Common Jail provides, in the aggregate, accommodation for 442 prisoners, taking into account the hopital buildings and cells. By Monday afternoon the joint population of the two Jails amounted to 1,915 prisoners, of whom 1,416—795 in the House of Correction and 621 in the Common Jail—were lock-up prisoners charged with rioting, and it became necessary to devise some means of relieving the pressure in the two above Jails occasioned by this enormous crowd. Accordingly on Wednesday the 16th of August 723 lock-up prisoners, of whom 450 came from the Common Jail and 273 from the House of Correction, were transferred by special train to Thána. All of the above 723 prisoners were Mahomedans, as means were being taken to separate the Hindu from the Mussalmán lock-up prisoners as far as possible, and the above measure of transferring only Mahomedan prisoners to Thána enabled us in the end to practically, before they were finally disposed of, put all the Mahomedan lock-up prisoners in the Common Jail, and all the Hindu lock-up prisoners in the House of Correction. The Common Jail contingent of the Thána column started just before daylight on the morning of Wednesday the 16th of August, picking up at the House of Correction on the way to the Byculla Railway Station the contingent belonging to the latter Jail. There accompanied this large body of prisoners from the Common Jail to the Jail of Thána an armed guard consisting of 2 officers and 64 non-commissioned officers and men of the Lancashire Fusiliers. In addition to the above, the prisoners were, during their march through the city to the railway station, guarded by 50 sowars of the 2nd Bombay Lancers. Only some 100 pairs of hand-cuffs were available for employment on the occasion of the above transfer, and the bulk of the prisoners were merely tied two and two together by pieces of cord fastened to their arms. It was this state of affairs and the possibility, therefore, of attempts, and successful attempts, at escape being made by some of the prisoners of the column, either on their way from the Jails to the railway station in Bombay, or from the train between Bombay and Thána, that led to the services of an abnormally strong military escort being asked for and obtained. Parenthetically I may here observe that since the occurrences under reference I have taken measures to accumulate, by transfer from other Jails, and retain in the Thána Jail a large number of hand-cuffs. The entraining of the prisoners at the Byculla Station was a long and tedious business, and I fear that the Bombay Jail Department must plead guilty to having upset to an appreciable extent the arrangements for the passenger traffic on the G. I. P. Railway in the immediate neighbourhood of Bombay on the morning of the 16th August, for the special train which took the prisoners to Thána, consisting as it did of 26 carriages, in addition to the engine and tender, was too long to be accommodated in any of the Byculla Station sidings. Mr. Vincent, the Commissioner of Police, accompanied the prisoners from the Common Jail to the Byculla Railway Station and lent a very ready, and much appreciated, help with his advice and assistance in the distribution throughout the train of the prisoners and their armed escort. A number of Police and of Jail warders accompanied the column from Bombay to Thána. Willing workers on the above occasion were Surgeon-Lieutenant-Colonel Waters, the Medical Officer of the two Bombay Jails, and Mr. Harvey, the Under-Secretary to Government, the former accompanying the prisoners from the House of Correction, and the latter from the Common Jail, to the Jail of Thána. There was no fear of anything in the nature of an outbreak accompanied by violent conduct on the part of the prisoners. The armed escort was sufficiently strong to have at once checked and repressed anything of that sort; but there was, notwithstanding the strength of the escort, considerable apprehension that, owing to the paucity of hand-cuffs, some of the prisoners might succeed, more especially in the train, in slipping away, and the services of the two officers named above on the occasion referred to, in the matter of giving general assistance all round, were very acceptable. The column of prisoners with its Bombay armed escort was met on arrival at Thána by an escort from the detachment of the 5th Regiment of Native Infantry quartered at that station, and by a strong party of the local Police, the whole of the town of Thána being in the streets to have a look at the prisoners on their march from the railway station to the Jail. By 10 A. M. the whole of the 723 prisoners were lodged in the Thána Jail, sending up the population of that Jail at a bound from 712 to 1,435 prisoners, or, in other words, slightly more than doubling it. These 723 prisoners were gradually disposed of by being released on bail from Thána Jail or by being brought back in batches to Bombay to be placed before the Magistrates Thána Jail was eventually made the receiving Jail for the greater number of such of the Bombay prisoners as were disposed of magisterially and sentenced to imprisonment, and some 208 prisoners of the above class were subsequently thus again received into Thána, being in all, save 5 instances, almost immediately transferred thence to Yerrowda.

74. Turning again to the Bombay Jails I may state, as regards myself, that, when these lock-up prisoners began to flow in such immense numbers into the two Jails in question, my instructions to each Superintendent were confined to informing him that so long as he had a spare hole or corner in his Jail he should receive these lock-up prisoners without regard to the hour at which they might reach the Jail or to the numbers in which they might come; that he should arrange, as far as possible, to put these prisoners under shelter, and arrange as best he could for feeding them, and for carrying on the conservancy arrangements of the Jail upset, in regard to the Municipal Halálkhor service, as the latter had been by the local disturbances. To the above I added that whatever money it might be necessary to spend to keep things going should be spent. It was no time for officious and needless interference on the part of the Head of the Department with the proceedings of the two Superintendents of the Jails in question. In both the Bombay Jails the task of feeding the lock-up prisoners was much lightened by large numbers of them being fed from outside at the cost of syndicates formed from the members of each community. Our departmental rules allow of under-trial prisoners being rationed from outside the Jails, and, therefore, the above arrangements involved no breach of any of our rules. As an illustration of the strain which was put upon the Superintendent, the staff, and the resources of each Jail, I may mention that I myself was present at about half-past ten at the House of Correction on the night of Sunday the 13th August when I witnessed a crowd of about 270 lock-up prisoners being admitted into that Jail. By utilizing the factory sheds and all available covered accommodation, no lock-up prisoner, whether in the two Bombay City Jails or in the Jail of Thána, failed to have a roof over his head at night during the period of his incarceration. Here and there instances of the grotesque were not altogeher wanting. Thus, for example, in the House of Correction some of the habitual prisoners, who were inmates of that Jail at the time the lock-up prisoners commenced to enter it in such large numbers, caused it to be conveyed to Captain Walshe, the Superintendent of the Jail, that they were, as old residents of the place, ready to lend every assistance in guarding these lock-up prisoners and in hammering the latter into good behaviour should they be disposed to give any trouble. It is perhaps hardly necessary to say, though it may seem ungracious to do so, that the offer above referred to was not accepted. Again, in the Common Jail one of these lock-up prisoners in the presence of a very large number of his fellows committed a somewhat aggravated assault on a warder. He was at once seized, tied up, and given a dozen, well laid on, strokes with a cane. It is of course a most unusual, nay an almost unprecedented thing to subject an under-trial prisoner to a flogging; but in the interests of discipline at a very critical period, when failure to deal promptly and severely with conduct such as the above might have led to an outbreak on the part of the other prisoners, I consider as I told him at the time, on learning of what had happened, that the Superintendent of the Common Jail was perfectly justified in punishing the above prisoner as he did. And now comes in the comical aspect of this case. The prisoner who was flogged was an habitual offender, well acquainted with the fact that under-trial prisoners are very largely exempt from the Jail discipline which is applicable to prisoners who have been convicted, and reckoning apparently that little or nothing would be done to him for assaulting the warder as above, he was somewhat astonished at receiving the thoroughly appropriate and well-deserved punishment which was meted out to him.

75. Each of the Bombay Jails during the disturbances, and for some few weeks afterwards, was protected by an armed military guard. And it is, I think, incumbent on me on the present occasion to gratefully acknowledge the readiness with which, during the period regarding which I am writing, the local Military authorities, from the late lamented Brigadier-General Budgen downwards, listened to and complied with our requests for guards and escorts, at a time when so many other and pressing demands were made upon their resources.

76. The situation of the Common Jail, undesirable at any time, is one which in times of riot and disturbance, such as that through which this City passed some seven or eight months ago, can hardly be too strongly condemned, situated as the Jail is in the heart of the native city, with its approaches consisting of narrow and tortuous streets and lanes. With the experience of last year to guide us, I think myself that in the case of the new Jail at Parel, plans and estimates for which have been provisionally sanctioned, some arrangement in the nature of shelter sheds, with enclosures or pens, each such pen containing space for some 20 prisoners, and there being 40 such pens, should be introduced into the scheme. Such an arrangement would provide shelter for eight hundred prisoners in addition to the ordinary accommodation of the Jail; and, in view of the very simple nature of the buildings which I have proposed as above should be added to the project of the new Jail at Parel, the extra outlay involved by my present suggestion should not, I take it, add very largely to the cost of the scheme as already sanctioned.

77. With such a crowd of lock-up prisoners in our charge for many days many of these prisoners showing signs of having been considerably knocked about in the disturbances in which they had borne a part, it would have been no matter for surprise if some of them had died on our hands. As a matter of fact, however, there was not a single death among the many hundreds of the above prisoners during the period in which, pending the disposal of their cases by the Courts, they were inmates of the two Bombay Jails and the Jail of Thána, a circumstance which, I think, speaks well for the medical management of all three Jails.

78. The strain imposed upon the Superintendents of each of the Bombay Jails and on the Superintendent of the Jail at Thána, and on their respective staffs, by the occurrences to which I have referred above, was for a very considerable number of days one of a very pronounced nature indeed. To Captain Walshe, the Superintendent House of Correction, to Mr. Mackenzie, the Superintendent of the Common Jail, and to Mr. Wellis, the Superintendent of the Jail at Thána, I consider great credit is due for the manner in which, zealously assisted as they were by their respective staffs, they faced the above strain and the circumstances, in respect to Jail management, of no ordinary situation, and I venture very respectfully to hope that Government may be disposed to endorse the above opinion on my part.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient Servant,
T. M. FILGATE,
Inspector-General of Prisons.

Annual and Periodical Reports—

Bombay Jails—Report on the—for the year 1893.

No. 4540 OF 1894.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 29th June 1894.

Letter from the Inspector-General of Prisons, No. 1653, dated the 14th April 1894—Submitting the Annual Report on the Jails in the Bombay Presidency for the year 1893.

RESOLUTION.—In considering the report on the Jail administration of the Bombay Presidency for 1893, and in comparing the returns with those of the preceding year, the effects of the riots which occurred in Bombay in August last must be borne in mind, together with the fact that admissions to the Subordinate Jails and lock-ups of Aden, Bombay, and Rájkot have been for the first time included in the returns. Thus, an abnormally large increase (from 52,682 in 1892 to 69,550 in the year under review) in the number of admissions, and a rise from 60,485 to 77,443 in the total number of persons confined during 1893, would under normal circumstances require the most serious consideration. The increase, however, occurred mainly in the Common Jail and House of Correction in Bombay and in the Jail at Thána, to which a large number of the rioters were transferred. The total number of convicts (15,521) admitted in 1893 compares very much more favourably with the figures for previous years. The following statement gives the comparison for five years in a convenient form :—

Year.	Total admissions.	Admissions of Convicts.	Proportions of admission of convicts to total admissions.
1889	54,216	17,111	31
1890	52,538	15,849	30
1891	53,540	15,931	30
1892	52,682	16,209	30·7
1893	69,550	15,221	22·3

While, then, the number of admissions of convicts and under-trial prisoners, and consequently the daily average jail population (8,135), showed an increase, the total number of convicts showed a decrease, and the daily average number was reduced from 7,228 to 7,198.

2. There was no remarkable variation in the number of sentences of imprisonment for periods under ten years, but sentences of over 10 years' imprisonment decreased in number from 25 to 6, while sentences of transportation, whether for life or for a term of years, rose in the aggregate from 149 to 181. The number of death sentences was 55, as compared with 52 in 1892.

3. The following statement, taken from paragraph 8 of Mr. Filgate's report, shows the number and disposal of convicted prisoners in 1892 and 1893 :—

Releases on appeal again show a satisfactory decrease. Escapes (21), though fewer than in the previous year, are still too high; but the Governor in Council notices that the Inspector General of Prisons is taking such steps as are possible with a view to punishing those who are responsible for affording opportunities of escape.

4. The statement in the preceding paragraph includes female convicts, whose number showed a most gratifying decrease from 839 in 1892 to 724 in the year under review. Juvenile prisoners also numbered only 105, or six fewer than in 1892.

5. Statement IV attached to the report shows that the results of the system of identifying prisoners in Jail did not maintain the extraordinary improvement noticed last year; but the figures indicate that the efforts of the Police and the Jail authorities are not being relaxed. A modification of the system for identifying prisoners is about to be introduced, and when the Inspector General of Police has been able to elaborate his scheme for bringing the Bertillon system of anthropometry into working order, it is hoped that a marked improvement will gradually appear.

6. The tables prepared from Statement VI and given by the Inspector General of Prisons in paragraph 22 of his report, showing the number of offences committed by prisoners and the nature of the punishments inflicted, are of unusual interest as embodying the first results of the changes in prison discipline advocated by the Jail Commission and accepted by the Government of India. The stocks have disappeared from the list of punishments and the imposition of fetters has been hedged round by new rules. The result has been a re-distribution of the class of punishments to which Superintendents have, in enforcing discipline, been compelled to resort. Results show an increase in the punishments of penal diet and solitary confinement (and of the two combined) and of corporal punishments. The only figures that afford a precise standard of comparison are the number of punishments inflicted on convicts by Criminal Courts, which decreased from 33 to 23, and the total number of punishments inflicted, which rose from 4,423 to 4,475.

7. Statement No. VII shows that the employment of convict officers has been continued and the system slightly extended during the year under review, the number employed (564) exceeding that of either of the two previous years. The Governor in Council notices with satisfaction that the number of reductions and other jail punishments on these officers was less by 15 than in the preceding year.

8. The Governor in Council will await Mr. Filgate's proposals regarding the diet scale to be laid down in the new Jail Manual, and will only now observe that the insertion in the general Jail Manual of detailed rules in the matter of diet for the guidance of Superintendents of each Jail separately would probably be less convenient than to so frame the general rules as to admit of variations which could be defined and limited in separate instructions to be issued for individual localities by the Inspector General.

9. The following table compares the number of under-trial prisoners in district jails, subordinate jails, and lock-ups with those confined in 1892:—

	1892.	1893.
District Jails.
Number remaining at close of previous year	204	160
Number admitted during year	3,138	5,674
Total ...	3,342	5,834
Subordinate Jails and Lock-ups.
Number remaining at close of previous year	485	526
Number admitted during year	30,139	44,270
Total ...	30,624	44,796
GRAND TOTAL ...	33,966	50,630

The increased admissions to district jails were due to the riots in Bombay, while the increase by 14,131 in the admissions to subordinate jails and lock-ups is due to the fact that hitherto the Annual Administration Report has not included returns of confinements in the lock-ups of Aden, Bombay, and Rájkot. In Government memorandum No. 6798, dated 30th October last, Mr. Filgate was requested to include them, and, as shown by him, the apparently large increase in admissions is due to this cause, and since the number of admissions to the Aden, Bombay, and Rájkot subsidiary jails and lock-ups was 15,641, an actual decrease in the number admitted to the jails hitherto included becomes apparent. Three under-trial prisoners escaped from district jails, ten from lock-ups and two from subordinate jails; none escaped in 1892 from district jails, eleven escaped from lock-ups and six from subordinate jails. The number of deaths among under-trial prisoners decreased in district jails from 9 to 5 and from 20 to 16 in subordinate jails and lock-ups.

10. Civil prisoners continue to be shown separately in Appendix E. to the repor[illegible]r the reasons which were explained to the Government of India in replying to [illegible]ir letter No. $\frac{9 \text{ Jails}}{417}$ of 3rd August 1893, and paragraph 35 of Mr. Filgate's report [illegible]ows that a slight increase has again taken place in the number of admis[illegible]s, which was 1,814, raising the daily average to 116, or two in excess of the average for 1892.

11. Proceeding to a consideration of the financial results of the administration for 1893, and taking the charges first, Government notice that the expenditure for 1893 compares as shown below with the preceding year:—

The increase in the gross cost of maintenance was due to the larger number of prisoners confined. The following statement gives the net cost excluding "Inspection charges":

Increase	3,090	...	20,084	2 4	...	...
Decrease	...	0 9	...	...	16,994	2 13

The first of the above tables shows that there was a slight decrease in the cost of rations per prisoner, though the figure remains much higher than the average cost in years preceding 1892. The rise in 1892 was due to dearness of provisions, and consequently unfavourable contract rates, following on a bad season, and, cæteris paribus, a return to the previous cost of rations (Rs. 27-2-3 in 1891) might have been expected. A variety of causes has, however, operated to maintain the cost at the high level now prevailing. It is true that, throughout the mofussil, grain was cheaper in 1893, and contract rates more favourable; but the modification in the prescribed diet scale, especially for under-trial prisoners, who are now on the same footing as labour prisoners on the lower scale, has tended to keep the charges high. Mr. Filgate still prefers to express no definite opinion upon the success of the system of grain-storing pits introduced at Dhárwár; but the figures in Statement X certainly show that, so far as can be judged by the results of the partial introduction of the system, there is every reason to look for satisfactory and economical results. The Inspector General should be requested to report whether it would not be as well, if only in ord[illegible] test, by wider experience, the soundness of the plan, to extend the systen[illegible] some other jail in another part of the Presidency. The substitution to some[illegible]ent of warders for police guards was the cause of the increase in the charg[illegible] the former and the decrease on account of the latter. The variations under other heads call for no remarks from Government, and are fully explained by the [illegible]spector General.

[illegible] Statements XI and XII attached to the report show the manner in [illegible]ere employed and the amount of their earnings. The fol[illegible]rmer is taken from paragraph 47 of the report. It [illegible]rdinate jails:—
